REPORTS ON LEND-LEASE

Coming Year To Be One Of Decisive War Action,
Chief Declares

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—President Roosevelt disclosed today that by international agreement the petroleum resources of the entire earth will be thrown open to "fair and equal access" by all nations after the war.

At the same time, the chief executive held forth no hope there will be more ample supplies of gasoline for domestic civilian use for the duration of the war.

"All available supplies of petroleum products will be required for a speedy and complete victory of the United Nations over the enemy," Mr. Roosevelt declared.

The President's disclosures were made in an exhaustive thirteenth report on lend-lease operations transmitted to congress.

Salient Highlights
Other salient highlights of the report included:

1. An intimation of the early invasion of German-occupied Europe from the west in the disclosure of a gigantic increase in shipments of munitions to England.

2. The United States has sent Russia nearly 7,000 fighting planes, more than 3,500 tanks and 195,000 motor vehicles of all kinds.

3. The United States intends holding on to airfields which it has constructed throughout the world until there is a final post-war settlement that will guarantee their use, for both strategic and commercial purposes, under a system of "general military security in which the interest of both the United States and other United Nations are fully protected."

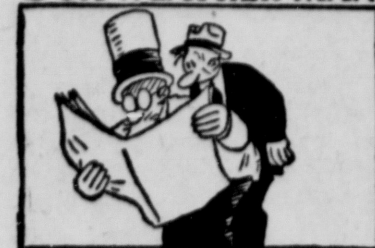

4. Lend-lease aid through last November 30 amounted to $18,608,553,000. Of this amount $10,355,820,000 was furnished in the first 11 months of 1943. Sixty-one percent of the $10,355,820,000 figure represented munitions.

Decisive Year
"The coming year will be a year of decisive actions in the war," the President declared. "The United Nations enter the New Year stronger and more firmly united than ever before."

"Germany and Japan will both soon learn that to their sorrow," revealing the international petroleum arrangement, the President said.

"After the war the nations of the world, including the United States, will require petroleum to (Continued on Page Two)

MacArthur's Labor Praise

Union Chiefs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—An American Federation of Labor spokesman today completely repudiated the action of the American Federationist, their monthly magazine, in issuing a telegraphic statement early Wednesday morning, picturing General Douglas MacArthur as praising labor in the midst of the Army's seizure of the railroads.

An AFL spokesman announced that the MacArthur message was published initially in the magazine's June 1942 edition. He added that the Federationist's press release early Wednesday was "completely unauthorized" and the "act of some one who had no authority to release such a statement."

The magazine's act created a furore at AFL headquarters here and further complicated Washington reaction to the declaration of a high Washington authority that the Army's seizure of the railroads had prolonged the war in Europe by six months.

Sanderson began his naval career 61 years ago and is said to be the oldest man on active duty with the armed forces of the Allies.

His first ship was the U. S. Iroquois which he joined at San Francisco in 1882.

BOLIVIAN ACT RESENTED

American Governments Probe
Likelihood Of Plots To Set Up Dictatorships

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—The United States and other Allied American governments are understood today to have considered the possibility of severing diplomatic relations with Argentina.

No decision has been reached as yet to resort to such drastic action, and there is some doubt in diplomatic circles in Washington as to whether the Pan-American nations will go so far.

However, the fact that the possibility of such a move has been discussed is considered evidence of the grave crisis which is developing in relations between Argentina and the other Pan-American republics.

Crisis Develops

This crisis has been brought to a head by Argentina's recognition of the Bolivian military government. The Argentine military regime is suspected of having inspired the recent revolt in Bolivia. Some of the neighboring American republics are fearful that a plot exists to encourage the establishment of similar military dictatorships in Uruguay, Chile and Peru.

The United States, Brazilian, Chilean and other Allied American governments are now seeking to ascertain whether such a plot actually exists. If evidence is found linking the Argentine government to such a plot, there is believed to be a possibility that the United States and several other American republics may break relations with the Buenos Aires regime.

Division Of Opinion

The state department at present is reluctant to resort to such a move because of the friendship which it feels the Argentine people have toward this country and the Allied cause. However, strong sentiment prevails in some other agencies of the government for drastic action against the Argentine government.

Meanwhile, Great Britain has been brought into the scope of this government's consultations concerning the Argentine situation. Secretary of State Cordell Hull has discussed the matter with British Ambassador Lord Halifax. British cooperation would be necessary if the Pan-American nations should resort to economic sanctions against Argentina, since Britain purchases large quantities of that nation's beef.

MADRID DENIES SPANIARDS ARE FIGHTING REDS

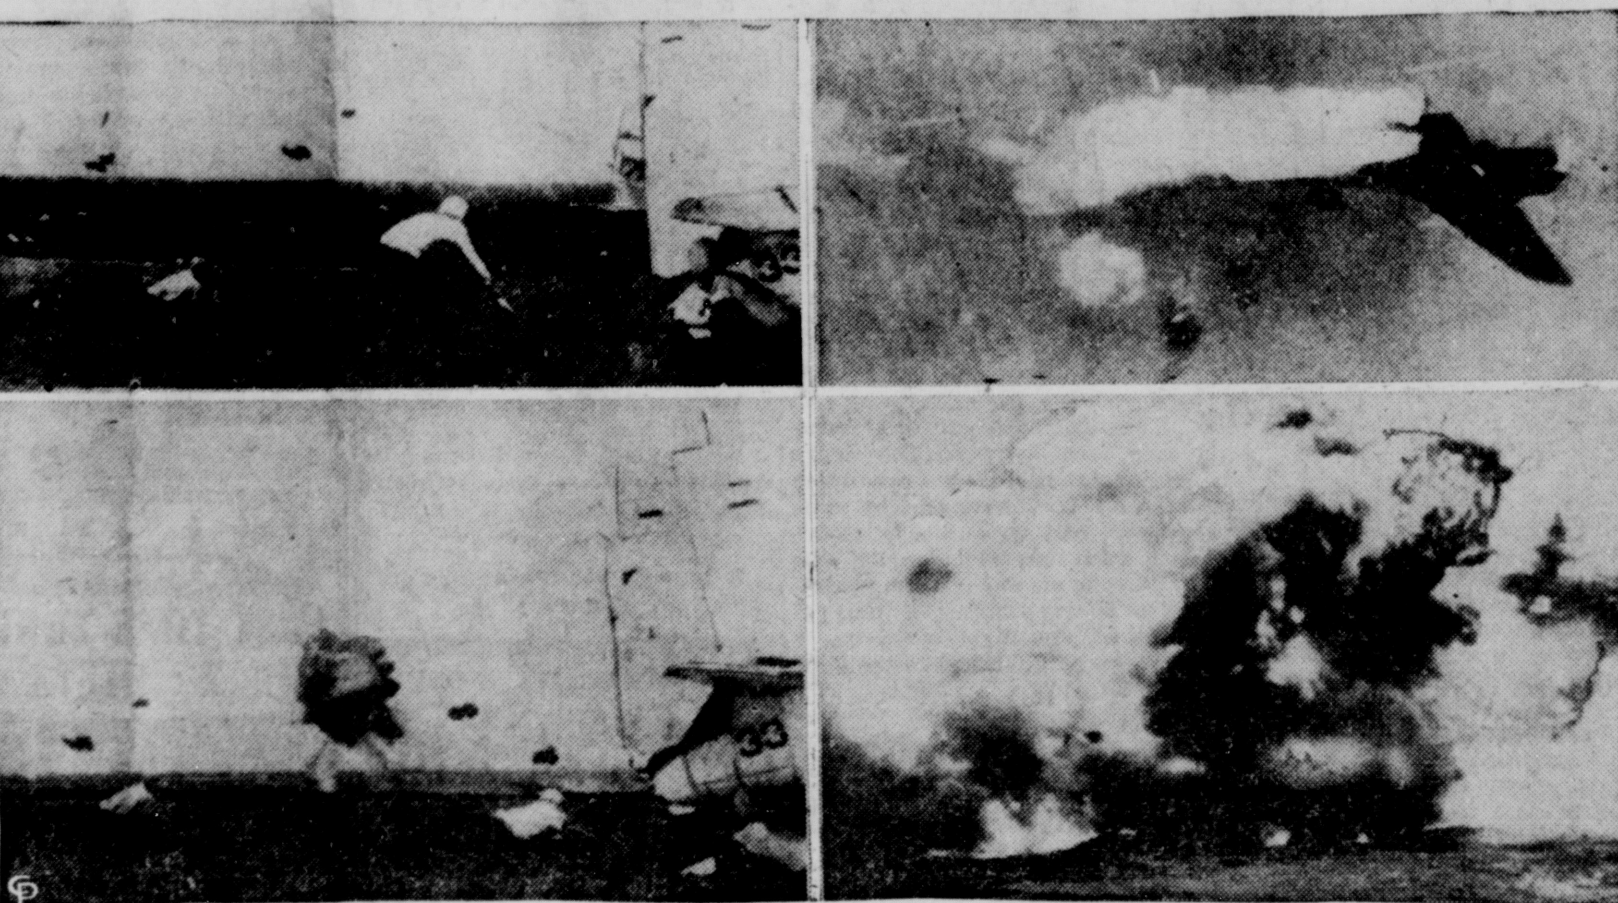

LONDON, Jan. 6—The Exchange Telegraph, quoting "authoritative dispatches from Madrid," said today that no Spanish units are fighting on the Russian front now, despite an official announcement to that effect by Moscow.

The last contingent of Spanish troops fighting as the Blue division returned to Spain three weeks ago, the dispatch added.

Tuesday night's Soviet communiqué stated that the Blue division forces were still fighting on the eastern front, and that the name of their unit merely had been changed to that of "Spanish Legion."

However, the British press association said that "authoritative information" reaching London indicated there are some Spaniards still fighting as volunteers with the German army. When the Blue division was disbanded last Autumn, the report said more than 90 percent of its members returned to Spain, but some elected to remain.

WAR PROFITS TO BE MADE PUBLIC

Truman To Bare Names And Gains Of 100 Biggest
American Firms

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—The senate Truman committee will bare the names and profits of the 100 biggest war contractors in the forthcoming senate fight over revision of the war contracts renegotiation law.

"We have the figures on the 100 biggest contractors," Sen. Truman (D) Mo., committee chairman, said today. "We will not only give their names, but we will give their profits."

Truman joined a minority of the senate finance committee in a battle against the most important changes proposed in the committee revision of the house-approved tax bill.

With the senate slated to debate the tax bill next week, it appeared possible that efforts may be made to reach a compromise in the renegotiation fight.

Sen. George (D) Ga., chairman of the finance committee, conferred with spokesmen for the war and navy departments and the maritime commission on effects of the proposed changes.

George declined to discuss the nature of the talks. He had announced his intention of seeking views of the war agencies on the effect of the renegotiation changes on administration of war contracts.

"This is no time to be creating new war millionaires, and we are afraid that is what would happen under the proposed changes," said Truman.

"We will show in our review of war profits that some of the companies that are complaining the most against renegotiation to scale down profits are among those making the most out of the war."

"The proposed changes would cost the treasury billions both in refunds and in future war costs." The senate finance committee minority report failed to make public many names of war contractors. (Continued on Page Two)

3,000,000 NAZIS BOMBED OUT OF BERLIN HOMES

LONDON, Jan. 6—Approximately three million persons in Berlin are homeless and 50 percent of the city devastated, the Swiss newspaper National Zeitung estimated today.

The London Daily Mail relayed the report which said another 25 percent of the city of 7,000,000 population has been damaged badly by Allied air raids. "Several square miles" have been completely wiped out, it said.

WFA Denies Charges Of "Hoarding" Food And Permitting Spoilage

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—The War Food Administration in effect denied charges today that the government is "hoarding" food and allowing large quantities to spoil in storage.

In a three-page statement on food stocks, answering criticism leveled at the agency by an Office of Defense Transportation spokesman, WFA said:

"Since the beginning of the lend-lease program in March, 1941, to December 1, 1943, WFA losses due to spoilage amounted to two one-hundredths of one percent of total purchases, equivalent to a loss of less than $1 on every $5,000 of purchases."

WFA's statement came as the senate post-war committee called a public hearing for tomorrow to hear government food officials on the charges of food spoilage.

The hearing was called at the request of Sen. O'Mahoney (D) Wyo., chairman of a special subcommittee studying disposition of huge stocks of government surpluses both during and after the war.

Make Frequent Checks
"Representatives of various agencies will be called for the purpose of developing the true picture in the matter of disposing of surpluses of food," said Sen. George (D) Ga., chairman of the post war committee.

The WFA report explained that inspectors make frequent checks and review the entire food stock position at least every 10 days.

Of the three major categories of food held in commercial storage, the largest is privately owned and destined for civilian distribution, the agency said.

"The second category consists of stocks owned by the military forces for which detailed data are not made public for security reasons," WFA declared.

(Office of censorship officials said, however, that use of information concerning military food stocks held in this country is not specifically prohibited under the wartime censorship code.)

Emergency Stocks
The third group includes stocks in the hands of the food distribution administration for emergency use by the military forces, for shipment to the United Kingdom, Russia and other Allied nations; and for Puerto Rico and Hawaii, the report said.

Commenting on the large private holdings, WFA pointed out that January, February, March and April are low food producing months of the year and said that such large stock holdings were "fortunate" in view of heavy war food requirements.

RAIL UNIONS RESUME PARLEY

Efforts Aimed At Early
Peace In Controversy
Over Wage Hoist

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—Officials of 18 railroad brotherhoods reassembled in Washington today to resume efforts aimed at settlement of the prolonged rail wage controversy and return of the nation's carriers to private operation.

The "cooling off" period of the last week was counted on to stimulate attempts to break the deadlock which developed co-incidentally with the year end strike threat and government seizure of the railroads.

However, it may be another week or two before the rail dispute can be cleared up and the army permitted to step out of the picture in view of the re-entrance into the non-operating union case of a special presidential wage board. The panel probably will have to conduct new hearings.

It is recalled that the high Washington authority, who declared army seizure of the railroads plus a threatened steel strike had prolonged the war six months, also asserted that return of the roads to private operation would not help the Allied cause in Europe. He said the damage had been done by the army's seizure of the roads and that their return to private operation was comparable to printing (Continued on Page Two)

Bayonet-wielding troops of the American Fifth army leaped to the attack on a ten-mile front outside the Nazi-held bastion of San Vittore and today had cleared half the city of the enemy.

American and British infantrymen of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's force smashed into the streets of the city which bars their way to Cassino and Rome, after seizing control of heights dominating San Vittore.

The German high command, determined to prevent the Allies from sweeping beyond San Vittore into Cassino which controls a good highway northwestward toward the Eternal City, has transformed the city into one of the most heavily fortified points of the Nazis' Italian line.

Preceding the Fifth army advance were low-sweeping invader planes which laid down a path of fire. Despite the rugged terrain, the Allied planes raced at speeds up to 300 miles an hour, threading their way through mountain passes to paste their targets.

Infantry Attacks

Following up their aerial barrage, the Allied infantrymen launched the attack Wednesday morning at dawn. By noon, front dispatches said, they controlled half the town, although they had to ferret out the Germans, house by house.

The Germans fought back stubbornly, and well-placed snipers and pill-boxes impeded the Fifth Army advance. Numerous booby-traps blocked the streets.

Advances averaging a mile in depth were scored by Clark's troops all along the ten-mile front. The official Allied communique added that "stiff fighting" continued on the Adriatic end of the trans-peninsular front.

At this portion of the line, the Canadians were attempting to drive up the coast to the important port of Pescara. In addition to its valuable harbor, this city is the eastern terminus of a good trans-Italian highway into Rome.

Bombing Continues

Meanwhile, the Allied aerial offensive against the Reich and occupied Europe continued without respite as fighter-bombers followed up forceful night of operations against the German port city of Stettin, Berlin and other important areas.

Striking almost 600 miles inside Germany, Royal Air Force heavy bombers unleashed a storm of bombs on Stettin which lies 84 miles northeast of Berlin near the mouth of the Oder river. The industrial town serves as port of the German capital.

An estimated 1,000 tons of bombs cascaded down on Germany, as the Allied raiders lost 15 of their number in raiding Stettin. The estimate was made by the London Evening Standard.

The British raid, carried out by speedy RAF Mosquito bombers, was the second in as many nights. The plywood craft also blasted targets in western Germany and northern France.

A new cold wave, although not so intense as one experienced just before Christmas, is expected to visit Circleville and Pickaway county during the next few days. The temperature did some skidding Wednesday night, dropping to 26 degrees, nine lower than 24 hours earlier.

Another light rain was recorded, .18 of an inch falling in the 24 hours prior to 8 a. m. Thursday.

maintain their industrialized economies. Discoveries of new oil fields will undoubtedly be made to supplement known oil reserves and, as in the past, the steady development of technological improvements in oil production will make it possible to draw on oil reserves which cannot now be tapped.

"Nevertheless, as in the case of other natural resources, some nations will have insufficient oil reserves to meet their petroleum requirements. Others will have a surplus.

Equal Distribution

"Agreed action by the nations of the world, as provided for in the master lend-lease agreements, for the expansion of production, the elimination of discriminatory treatment in commerce, and the reduction of trade barriers, will assure the United States and other nations fair and equal access to the petroleum produced in all parts of the world."

The President dampened any hopes for increased supplies of civilian motor fuel during the war by asserting:

"The over-all petroleum war needs of the United Nations in 1944 will rise above what they are now as the magnitude of our offensive increases. . . additional supplies of petroleum products from other areas will not therefore result in reducing the demands on our own petroleum resources."

BUSES BANNED FROM USE OF COVERED BRIDGE

Bus traffic between Circleville and Kingston and between Kingston and Chillicothe was disrupted Wednesday night when state highway patrolmen, checking the weight of the Valley Public Service Co., banned the big carriers from traveling over the Deer creek wooden covered bridge on Route 104. They declared the heavy buses were too big a load for the old bridge.

The detour has been in use since the north span of the river bridge at Chillicothe fell into the Scioto several weeks ago.

As a result of the ban on buses, persons living in Kingston and working in Circleville and Chillicothe are finding it difficult to reach their work. Private cars are being pressed into service for the trips back and forth.

Buses will use Routes 22 and 277 between Chillicothe and Circleville, traveling west out of Circleville to Williamsport and south through Clarksburg to Chillicothe. The same route is being used in reverse for traffic from Chillicothe north.

Passenger cars are being permitted to travel Route 104, only heavier vehicles being banned from the Deer creek bridge.

Bus company officials hope to be able to put a bus of lighter weight into service so Kingston travelers can be served, but nothing has been worked out as yet.

FARMER TAKES FIRE TO CIRCLEVILLE STATION

John Matz, Washington township farmer, started to market Wednesday with a load of ear corn and some bags in which to put the corn after it had been shelled at a local mill.

But when Mr. Matz reached the mill the bags were gone.

The Washington township man drove his truck to the fire department and asked firemen to extinguish flames which had broken out in the rear of the truck. A cigaret had been tossed from the truck cab and instead of going to the ground had landed among the bags. They caught fire.

No other damage was done.

ANGUS CATTLE BREEDERS FORM ORGANIZATION

Aberdeen Angus cattle breeders of Pickaway county formed an organization Wednesday evening at a meeting conducted in Circleville devoted to promotion of the breed in this district. Twenty men attended the meeting.

The organization, named the Pickaway County Aberdeen Angus Association, elected Dean Godden of Williamsport, as its president; Harry Brown of New Holland as vice-president, and Hewitt Cromley of Ashville as secretary-treasurer.

The association decided to have regular meetings, to advertise and promote the breed, promote the Junior Fair exhibit of Angus cattle, hold a county show and sale of registered cattle, to conduct a tour to Angus herds of the county, and to organize a regular association of breeders with a constitution and by-laws.

The association pledged $100 for the Angus exhibit on the Junior Fair next fall.

Next meeting of the association will be conducted Wednesday, March 8.

It is recalled too that the thing that aroused this authority was not labor's conduct so much as the fact that the threatened rail strike had not been settled without army seizure of the roads. That was the point stressed. He appeared to hold government authorities as much responsible as labor for the army's seizure of the roads.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, has identified this high authority as General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

At the same time, the army—in a report on its first week in control of the railroads—reported everything was running smoothly and that the War department had not found it necessary to intervene in any way in the regular conduct of the affairs of the roads.

The old U. S. S. Constitution received the name "Old Ironsides" following its victory over the British frigate Guerriere.

"General MacArthur's statement reads as follows: 'Labor never has failed the army or the nation. May God bless you all for your splendid patriotism.'"

"This statement, sent to the American Federation of Labor by Four-Star General MacArthur—a fighting general—is being given most prominent display in the Federationist as is a large photo of the general."

An AFL spokesman made this comment: "The announcement was completely unauthorized. The story was not released by anybody in authority. If the MacArthur message is being printed in this week's issue of the Federationist, it will be a reprint of the message published in the June 1942 edition."

HOW TO CURE THAT STICKY IRON

Don't "cuss" at a sticky sole plate on your electric iron. Here's an easy cure. Heat the iron, then rub the iron over a piece of paper sprinkled with salt. This removes starch or other substances. Then wax the sole plate by rubbing paraffin or beeswax over it. Finally remove the excess wax by running the iron over a clean piece of paper. Burnt starch can be removed with fine steel wool when iron is cool.

- 1 Never iron over buttons, snaps, zippers or hooks and eyes. Such objects score the sole plate of the iron.
- 2 Use extreme care to avoid dropping your iron. You may break some vital part that is impossible to replace.
- 3 Be sure iron is cool before putting it away. And don't wrap cord around the hot iron.
- 4 Take good care of your iron cord. Don't let it kink. Pull out plug by grasping plug, not the cord.

BOY FUGITIVES STEAL CARS TO FLEE POLICE

State highway patrolmen and authorities in several central and southcentral Ohio counties were on the lookout Thursday for two youthful fugitives from the Boys' Industrial school, near Lancaster. The youths escaped the institution Wednesday night, hitched a ride as far as Amanda, stole a car and continued their journey toward western Ohio after stealing a car from the Clark garage, Williamsport.

The boys were named as Russell Riley, 15, of Dayton, and William Day, 16, of Hamilton.

The Amanda car was found abandoned one mile west of Williamsport on Route 22. It was a 1935 Chevrolet coach.

The Clark garage was broken into about 4 a. m. The cash register was looted of $5 in cash and the Clark family automobile, a 1937 Chrysler, was stolen. A gasoline coupon book was also taken.

Patrolmen were watching all roads in the Dayton and Hamilton district believing the two boys may be headed for home.

The report of Sen. Walsh (D) Mass., however, said that 40 manufacturing companies out of a selected list of 200 retained enough war profits after paying taxes in 1942 to more than double their net worth.

The report said the lowest earning record among the 200 was 16.1 percent, while the company making the most money realized 965 percent on its investment after paying taxes.

The report asserted that 11 of the 200 companies made over 200 percent profit after taxes in 1942, while four earned 500 percent or more.

The tax bill is slated to reach the senate floor next Wednesday. The fight over renegotiation, as well as a battle over "freezing" social security taxes, may delay passage for two weeks unless a compromise is reached.

ALLIES SWEEP AHEAD ALONG TEN MILE FRONT

Gen. Nikolai Vatutin captured 60 more towns and villages in their drive clear the lower Ukraine of the Nazi invaders.

After capturing Berdichev, key defense position 85 miles northeast of the Romanian border, the first Ukrainian army pressed forward in a drive that threatens to topple all German defenses in lower Russia. One column of Cossack cavalry was reported to have penetrated "deep" toward Sarny, which is 35 miles west of the pre-1939 Polish frontier.

In White Russia, the first Baltic Army seized 90 other inhabited places while driving toward the Latvian border, less than 40 miles distant.

The Japs, meantime, were hampered backward by United States Marines advancing toward Borgen bay on New Britain. On New Guinea, too, other Americans were gaining in the Saldor area.

Six Institutes To Be Conducted In County Starting In January

Six institutes will be conducted during the next six weeks in Pickaway county communities, the first at Walnut township school building opening January 24 and the last, at Saltcreek township, getting under way February 11.

Dates for the institutes and assignment of state speakers were worked out this week when officers of the various communities committees met with F. K. Blair, Pickaway county extension agent. More complete program will be announced by the various institutes.

CLERK MAY BE EMPLOYED AT CITY HOSPITAL

City Solicitor Joe W. Adkins was instructed Wednesday evening by council to draw an ordinance for presentation at the next session of council to provide for an employee at Berger hospital to handle the bookkeeping job and to serve as a clerk under bond.

The move for such an employee was made after the solicitor declared that employment of such a person could work to great advantage in that it would free the superintendent for more valuable work.

Mr. Adkins pointed out that the superintendent must now serve as a surgical nurse, collect accounts, keep all books and records, handle all purchases, figure rationing points, make regular reports to the government on alcohol and narcotics, make reports to the state on maternity cases involving wives of soldiers so payment can be obtained, handle all the detail concerning industrial claims cases, file regular reports to the welfare department, and a score of other duties.

"This is too much for any one person to do," the solicitor said. The person hired to do the clerical work would also act as a collector. There are about $8,000 in old accounts standing now at the hospital, the solicitor declared that a large percentage of this money being collectable.

MAYOR ADMINISTERS OATHS TO OFFICIALS

Mayor Ben H. Gordon took the role of official "swearer-in" Wednesday evening when he administered the oath of office to Solicitor Joe W. Adkins, Councilmen Ray Cook, George Crites, J. Donald Mason, Boyd Horn, Ray B. Anderson and W. M. Reid, and to Clerk Fred R. Nicholas after he was elected for another term.

The oath is usually administered by John C. Goeller, council president, but he was unable to attend. Troy W. White, newly-elected councilman-at-large, was also absent because of illness.

Mr. Reid, councilman-at-large, was elected as president pro tem to serve when Mr. Goeller is absent. He was in the chair Wednesday evening.

NEAL E. SWARTZ SUFFERS FROM BATTLE WOUNDS

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Swartz, Sr., of Amanda, have received word from the War department that their son, Corporal Neal E. Swartz, 25, is in an army hospital in North Africa after suffering shrapnel wounds in his right foot and ankle. He was injured December 7 when fighting with the 36th division in General Mark Clark's army in Italy.

The Amanda couple has not been given any information concerning the battle in which their son was hurt, a V-mail letter received from the soldier said that he was improving and feeling well.

Corporal Swartz was drafted in March, 1942, and was trained at Camp Blanding, Fla., and Camp Edwards, Mass., before going overseas in March, 1943.

The corporal was possibly in the same outfit as Private First Class Woodrow Eppard of near Circleville who was wounded on the same date. He also is in a North African hospital.

SHERIFF TAKES RADIO OUT OF COLLETT'S CELL

(Special to The Herald)
WASHINGTON, C. H., Jan. 6.—James Collett, 60-year-old Clinton county farmer who is charged with the first degree murder of the Elmer McCoy family of three, will have to get along in the Fayette county jail without his radio.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Collett took his radio to the jail and the allegedly confessed killer was permitted to install it.

Prosecutor John Hill issued orders Wednesday to Sheriff W. H. Icenhower to order the radio removed. "Collett must be treated the same as any other prisoner," Hill said. "He is not entitled to a radio."

The Clinton county farmer will go on trial February 12. He is indicted for murder of Elmer McCoy, his wife and his 22-year-old daughter, Mildred. All three were killed Thanksgiving eve. Collett has admitted killing McCoy, brother of Mrs. Collett, but has denied knowledge of how the two women met their death. Since he is indicted for first degree murder he is not eligible for bond.

CITY REFUSES TO WAIVE FEES FOR CHILDREN

A request to council that Berger hospital waive a $10 fee paid by the Circleville and Pickaway County Public Health association for each indigent child sent there for a tonsil operation failed to receive support at the Wednesday evening meeting. The communication, sent to council by Fred C. Clark, president of the association, was referred to the hospital committee after several councilmen expressed opposition to the move.

Mr. Clark's letter pointed out that the association is financed with Community Chest money and that about $1,500 was spent in 1943 for tonsil operations. City and county children are provided the operations, $15 going to two surgeons who do the work and $10 to the hospital. The association president pointed out that since Berger hospital is a municipal institution he believed the $10 should be waived for city children. However, he said the association is willing to continue paying for rural children.

HOLIDAY COMFORTS

IT is to be hoped that all Americans lucky enough to be living in their natural home environment during the recent holidays have been turning their minds and hearts toward the Pacific war zone. There many of their men-folk, who by such sacrifice make this home comfort possible, have been wallowing in blood and mud. Such contrasts must be kept in mind, lest too many well-meaning but self-centered civilians lose their war-time perspective.

It helps to preserve reality when the home folks read of such warnings as these, issued to the jungle fighters: "Don't yell for a corpsman when a buddy gets hit, and thus put the spotlight on him." And, "Don't forget to dig a deep foxhole with overhead cover, even if you stop only for an hour." It has been surprising, however, to read such holiday suggestions as "a comfortable pair of slippers or moccasins for a marine to rest his dogs after a hard jaunt in the jungle." That would undoubtedly be a wonderful comfort, if there were solid soil to stand on, and if fighting men in the jungle had any leisure to wear slippers.

News from the fighting areas so far has not been reassuring on that point. Realistic descriptions seem to indicate that it is usually a long time between opportunities for removing boots and washing weary and blistered feet.

Supply officers in this war, though, learn from daily experience. Clean socks and light slippers might give a chance for shoes to dry while a soldier sleeps. If slippers can be used, let 'em have 'em.

EACH FOR ALL

IT should be obvious to intelligent people that this nation must put forth all its power and resources, as Russia is doing and as Britain has done from the first. If we Americans happen to have the most economic strength, glory be to God for that! Where every Allied nation gives all it has, material and human, in a combined effort to save itself and its like-minded friends and associates, anybody who grudges his contribution must have a mean soul or a poor understanding.

Until lately, Britain and Russia have borne the big burden of the war, but America is catching up. There is work and fighting enough for all, and in the end there will be glory for all.

Whatever work the fighting men and their helpers may do when they get back home will seem easy.

Sweden hasn't entered the war, but she's preserving the smorgasbord.

War Manpower Commission Believes Problem Is Licked Barkley's Political Fate Linked With Roosevelt

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Word is going the rounds in official Washington that the manpower problem has already probably passed its peak, and that from now on it may slacken a little until the collapse of Germany causes heavy war contract cancellations and wholesale release of workers.

Whether or not this assumption is correct, the War Manpower commission feels that it has now obtained a grip on the manpower problem, and that it has a working formula for solution of critical labor shortages.

As a result, talk of national service legislation is not expected to be stressed as much hereafter.

The formula used by the WMC in solving manpower shortages is as follows:

- 1—Determine what production and services in a given area are most urgent.
- 2—Establish manpower priorities, giving labor to industries and business establishments in relation to this urgency.
- 3—Guide workers to plants having priority, that is, make sure that any available labor is used where it is needed most.

WMC officials say that communities throughout the country are going after labor shortages in the right fashion.

● AT 1600 PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE in Washington stands what is probably the most powerfully guarded home in all the western hemisphere—the White House.

Rep. Joe Martin (R) of Massachusetts, house minority leader, found out all about it the other day. He went to the White House to see the president following Mr. Roosevelt's return from the Tehran conference, but forgot to take his special identification card with him.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND by DREW PEARSON

WALLACE'S PHILOSOPHY

WASHINGTON—Terrence Burke, editor of the Loyola college newspaper, came to Washington the other day and got an appointment to see the vice president. He asked Mr. Wallace for a statement in the form of advice to the young men of this generation.

Wallace grinned and shook his head. "I haven't got anything to say. I never liked it when the old folk handed out advice, and I am not going to impose my advice on others."

The boy stared, puzzled. He had never found an adult unwilling to tell the young how to behave. There was a long pause. It looked as if the interview would fold up on the spot.

Presently Wallace resumed. "The only way for a young fellow to determine the right course is to search within himself. Advice imposed on him is no good. It has to spring from within."

Wallace had struck a theme close to his heart. He warmed up.

"A man came in here the other day and asked for the titles of the ten books which had influenced me most. He was getting the same thing from a lot of people—the President, Mrs. Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin, and others. I didn't want to do it, because the books that have influenced me might not be the right books for others. I never like to prescribe for others."

"But I did name the Bible and Plato's Republic. These two books are full of the idea of the dignity of the human soul, respect for the individual. They state it over and over again. The ancient Hebrews and the Greeks—the Bible and Plato. Both civilizations were based on the dignity of the individual human being."

Terrence Burke had expected to stay only five minutes. But the vice president was talking so earnestly that it was obviously not the moment to go. He sat like the student at the feet of Gamaliel.

"The only way to develop your full strength is to reach out for something greater than yourself. That holds for a runner in a track meet, and it also holds for a politician or a business man. You have got to reach beyond your grasp, or you will never explore your full capacities."

"This is in the Bible time and again. There are a lot of things in the Bible that fit conditions today—even inflation!"

BIBLE ON RENEGOTIATION

Here Wallace reached for his Bible and searched through it for the Book of Amos. "Amos was the oldest of all the prophets, and a real social revolutionary."

The vice president started reading from the eighth chapter of Amos. "Hear this, O ye that swallow up the needy, even to make the poor of the land to fail..."

Wallace looked up. "These are the profiteers," he said. "And listen to this. Amos is putting his finger on the people who don't want to renegotiate contracts."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

"When will the new moon be gone, that we may sell corn? And the Sabbath, that we may set forth wheat, making the ephah small and the shekel great. That's inflation—and falsifying the balances by deceit."

The vice president looked at his listener, with a twinkle behind his silver-rimmed glasses. Then he read another verse.

"That we may buy the poor for silver, and the needy for a pair of shoes; yea,

Control of Common Cold

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ATTEMPTS to prevent colds and respiratory infections by any kind of vaccines or inoculation of the individual have proved miserable failures. Some of the worst

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Kind of blunders go masked under the smiling face of optimism. I regularly read in trade magazines published by drug firms whose business it is to sell oral cold vaccine and other kinds of cold vaccines that "Pessimism characterizes the attitude of many as to preventing the common cold."

That is not pessimism; that is realism: facing the fact that these methods are miserable failures. And the kind of optimism presumably recommended would mulct the public of millions of dollars for perfectly worthless, and time consuming methods of prevention. There is a form of prevention of colds and respiratory affections limited it is true in scope which, however, promises some hope. And it serves a very important field and purpose.

Epidemics in Wards

One of the serious possibilities of these epidemics is when they hit a schoolroom or a hospital ward, particularly a hospital ward full of children. One of the definitely known facts about colds is that they are air-borne, spread by coughing and sneezing. Here one child gets a cold and it is very likely to go through the whole classroom or ward. In the ward some of the children may be in splints or in braces which situation reduces their chances of throwing the infection off.

We used to hang up sheets between every bed in an influenza ward to prevent cross-infection, but that did little good.

The latest device is to use a sterilizing vapor of propylene glycol. This substance was developed by research in order to find a chemical vapor that would do no harm to the mucous membrane of human beings, but would destroy or mobilize the organism which causes the common cold.

Vaporized Glycol

In a hospital ward or schoolroom the propylene glycol is vaporized by heat from a small radio resistance unit and wafted through the rooms by electric fans. Units of this type—vaporization apparatus and electric fan—are arranged on stands at the mid-point of the end walls of the room, about three feet from the ceiling.

Methods of measuring the concentration of the vapor have been perfected. It stays in the air a long time, half of it being present an hour after the vaporization had been stopped.

The results as shown in a children's hospital in Philadelphia and one in Atlantic City are quite encouraging. They are as follows:

Type of Infection	Number
Tracheobronchitis	12
Otitis media	2
Acute pharyngitis	7
Common cold	79

In the first column headed "Control" are listed the number of cases of respiratory in a room where there was no vaporization. The second column shows the number in a room in the same hospital, where vaporization was in force. The reduction of common colds from 79 to 8 is a strong argument in favor of the method.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Kite flying, marbles, fishing and house cleaning flashed through the minds of Circleville residents as premature Spring weather continued in this section.

William D. Radcliff, Pickaway county representative to the new Ohio general assembly, was appointed to serve in the important judiciary committee in addition to state building, park-public works unit and banks and banking.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Bales returned home after spending the holidays with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Foster Bales, of Northampton, Mass.

10 YEARS AGO

E. H. Rausenberger, West Main street, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Clay of Columbus left for a two-month tour through Florida.

Hopeful waiting of Ashville officials resulted in approval of the government of a public works program for that village. A loan and grant of $60,000 was announced in Washington, D. C.

Indications were that Mayor William B. Cady's first action toward his "New Deal for Circleville" would be in the direction of public improvements.

25 YEARS AGO

Lawrence E. Goeller was elected president of the Lutheran Brotherhood in the session in the social room of the church.

Colonel Byron L. Bargar, former Columbus safety director, was decorated together with 149 officers and men of his outfit, with the Belgian Iron Cross by King Albert of Belgium.

SYNOPSIS MALLORY BAKER, self-centered, but young, beautiful and talented singer has achieved success—with the aid of TOD PATRICK, her manager. He has been her agent since she was an entertainer striving to reach the top. En route to Mexico by plane, Mallory meets an attractive, rather mysterious young man.

RICHARD BLYTHE. YESTERDAY: Mallory is frightened again when she sees the automobile which had been parked at the scene of the murder she witnessed.

CHAPTER TWELVE YES, MALLORY was certain now, as the long black sedan fairly leaped past her, that it was the same sedan that had formed a semi-circle for the brutal roadside murder. White sidewall tires, latest possible body lines—most of all, of course, the white-scarfed man driving—it all fitted.

"Better start talking to yourself, Mallory!" she prompted, doing that very thing. "All right, you're scared again. Then, why didn't you go to the police in Montreux?"

"Because I wasn't absolutely sure," her mind answered. "You're sure now. What are you waiting for?"

The blond girl squirmed. Again her mind strove to soothe. "You can't go batting into a police station and say two harmless looking men were cracking a man's head as if it were a peanut. They probably wouldn't believe me. They might not even do anything about it."

"Look, Mallory, this may be the land of manana, but they are not lazy!"

"I'll do something about it in Mexico City. I swear it will. If I just had someone to help me—not Prizm. I could have had her easily. I need the help of some man. Tod. Or someone like him, to sort of bolster me. Richard Blythe! If I had him—but how am I going to get him?"

"I will get him if I have to go through the streets of Mexico City yelling for him." That determination made her feel safer. Also, the occupant of the black sedan had taken no notice of her. That made her feel safer, too.

Their flying speed was an indication that they intended to drive the 600 plus miles in to the city that day. As for herself, she'd planned a slow trip and now she assuredly would take it slowly. She wanted that leaping black sedan far ahead of her.

Again the scenery began to lure Mallory. Although the vegetation remained sparse and desert-like on rocky land, uninteresting, the Sierra Madres made up for it. They traveled at her right, making an endless chain of beauty. Travelers, with their burros, of course, were out again today.

They kept far to the edge of the pavement, trained by the days of heavy tourist travel. Sometimes there was a lone traveler, more often a couple of men, or a man and his little boy. Occasionally an entire family, the woman in brilliant skirts, trotted along briskly. Always the woman carried, besides the baby strapped across her back, loaded jugs and baskets.

Even the burros were laden. They supported high stacks of wood, miniature mountains of it, or perhaps many, many sheaves of corn. Mallory wondered how they possibly managed to stand up beneath those loads on their tiny feet. They were like fat women, unable in the too-small, padded, little pumps. She marveled, too, at their ability to stop dead still and wait while their owners, motionless also, stared at her with huge brown eyes, their faces impassive.

Seldom, very seldom, did Mallory see a smile, and that usually came from a youngster. They were the ones who responded to her friendly waves; the grownups seemed disinterested entirely. Later, she was to learn that the majority of these people had the stern Indian blood rather than the more jovial Spanish.

She did not stop for lunch. In Montreux she had bought a box lunch. Chicken sandwiches, a tomato, some fruit and some delicious chocolate cookies. While eating she slowed to about 20 miles an hour so she would not miss any of the sights. She was seeing more little homes now, places with straw roofs. In the dusk of the previous evening she had missed them. In a dirt-beaten yard she saw something that looked like a flat wheelbarrow. A baby was sitting in it, having a bath, a giggling, squirming, soap-splashed, coffee-toned baby, with hair black as tar.

Women swept their houses, even their yards, with crude brooms made of twigs and straw. There was much visiting, much shouting. She saw a two-piece orchestra rehearsing for the evening in a tiny saloon. A guitar and, ludicrously, a very American saxophone. These saloons—cantinas—were everywhere, small, with few bottles, but with many glossy, bright-lettered signs.

On a sudden impulse Mallory stopped at one of the little cantinas and went in. There were no customers—not during the siesta hour—but countless members of the family made the small cafe seem crowded. Four children slept in a corner with a couple of puppies.

An older child sat in a chair bouncing a baby on her knee. The mother was cooking in back of a low partition. A man and a boy, obviously another son, were back of the bar, both leaning on their elbows. Mallory's entrance produced a death-like quiet, instantly followed by excited jabbering. The woman ran up back of the bar to help greet the customer. The girl, rocking the baby, put it on the floor and let it there. It cried and kicked its legs with fury. Two of the sleeping children awoke and stared. The dogs began to bark. Everyone was talking frenziedly and smiling, talking to Mallory, among themselves, to Mallory again.

Her confused gaze swept over a chalked menu. Besides various Mexican dishes there was "Bife steak." Beefsteak, she knew, but she didn't want that.

She wished Pepe were along; she certainly needed an interpreter. Then her gaze lighted upon one of the gaudy tin beer signs that had enticed her in the first place. Memorizing operatic arias had given her a fair idea of various language pronunciations.

"Cerveza," she ordered. Successfully, for the man put a bottle of cold beer before her. And she was rewarded by exclamations and chuckles, as if she had delivered a speech in precise Spanish. However, when she left, she did not fare so well. Words like "centavos" and "cincuenta" meant nothing. She filled her palm with change and signaled the cantina keeper to take what was due him.

She used the same tactics on two little boys at a gasoline station, unable in the too-small, padded, little pumps. She marveled, too, at their ability to stop dead still and wait

Gordon, Keller Gone; Yanks May Take Big Kicking Around In '44

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, Jan. 6—Bill Dickey, Joe Gordon, Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller used to make the Yankees kick.

When they lost DiMaggio's centerfield ball-hawking and his power hitting, it was Dickey, Gordon and Keller who got most of the applause. They were the key men. Dickey probably will be back there behind the bat again next season, despite an inclination on his part to retire. But Gordon and Keller will be among the missing, and although there doesn't appear to be any great strength anywhere in the American league it is barely possible that this coming campaign will lead to a harsh and rude upsetting of the world champions.

They won't find anybody to fill the places at second base and in left field to be left vacant, respectively, by Gordon and Keller, who won't be back unless the unforeseen happens to them en route into the service.

I wouldn't even try to guess right now what the Yankee lineup will be. I don't suppose Manager Joe McCarthy would either. In fact he is notorious for being a non-guesser on more predictable things than this. He probably would grant that it looks as though Bill Johnson will be back at third base. But Johnson, sensational as he played last season and in the World Series, can't hold down the entire infield.

All the Yankees actually know at this time, according to an announcement as of today, is that they will report at Atlantic City for Spring training on March 13 and that they will play 16 exhibition games, 11 of them already arranged.

To Start And Finish

Major league officials and the club-owners are convinced they will be able to start and finish the season, regardless of expected further losses of man-power to the armed forces.

CITY FIRE LOSS SET AT $11,075 DURING YEAR

Fire loss in Circleville during 1943 amounted to $11,075, Chief Talmer Wise informing council Wednesday evening that the truck went on 132 runs, an average of one in less than every three days.

In addition, fire equipment went on 31 trips into the rural areas of nine townships which are served under the Pickaway County Volunteer Fire Fighters' association. No estimate was made of rural loss.

The department was called on six emergency cases, and three calls were received to unlock doors.

The fire department pension board informed council that it has $687 in its treasury and that two men are on pension from the department, one receiving $600 a year and the other $900 a year.

Council was asked also to designate two council members to serve on the pension board for 1944. Fred A. Howell is chairman of the pension unit and Robert Wolf is its secretary.

FIGURES SHOW YANKEES BEST

New Yorkers Best Both In Day And Night; Niggeling Jinxed

CHICAGO, Jan. 6—The American league baseball office, in releasing a potpourri of items about the 1943 season, confirmed today that the world champion New York Yankees were the tops both night and day.

Curiously, the three league clubs which play no night games at home, led the won-lost column for after-dark contests. The Yankees won seven and lost five and the Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers each won eight and lost six.

The league office also reported the Yankees held a wide margin over other clubs in the junior circuit in winning games by ninth inning rallies.

The New Yorkers pulled 12 games out of the fire in the final inning while losing only four on rallies by their opponents. The Chicago White Sox, who topped the league in games won by 10 runs, finished second, and Boston third in the late rally department.

In all, during the 1943 campaign, 54 games were won in the ninth inning and four games ended in 1 to 0 scores in which the single run was scored in the ninth.

Other league scrapings: Among the hard-luck pitchers, Johnny Niggeling, then with St. Louis, twice hurled two-hit ball, but lost on both occasions, in the fourth inning against Cleveland and in the ninth against Philadelphia. . . . The White Sox was the only club which failed to get at least one homer in every league park. . . . Washington was the only team to collect more home runs in a road park than at home, homering 17 times at St. Louis as compared to nine circuit clouts in Griffith Stadium.

BASSLER TAKES LEAD IN WEST COAST TOURNEY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6—Harry Bassler, Fox Hills professional, had the medalist honors in hand today after shooting a two-under-par 72-70—142 to capture first place in the qualifying event preceding the $12,500 Los Angeles golf championship.

Bassler led a field of 186 pros and amateurs who were gunning for a place in the 128-player open which begins a four-day campaign tomorrow at the Wilshire Country Club.

One stroke behind Bassler was San Francisco's 17-year-old Bobby Rosburg, and Eddie Nowak, Inglewood pro, with 143. Rosburg, finalist in the California State amateur at Pebble Beach last summer, carded 70-73—143 after missing a six-foot birdie putt that would have earned him a tie with Bassler.

TWO PRO LOOP BIGWIGS FIGHT LAYDEN'S FINES

CHICAGO, Jan. 6—Protests against the $500 fines he leveled against two of the National Football league's executives were on file with Commissioner Elmer Layden today.

George Marshall of the Washington Redskins and Ralph Brizola of the Chicago Bears were penalized by Layden as a result of an altercation between them at Wrigley field during the championship playoff game December 26.

Layden announced he was prepared to hear the cases at any time but that no appointments had been made.

Washington reports said Marshall would arrive in Chicago a day early for the league meeting next Wednesday and Thursday so that he might take up his protest with Layden.

Barbara Stanwyck, who once offered to be Charlie McCarthy's agent for a day, will be Edgar Bergen's guest Sunday evening at 7 p. m. over NBC.

When Miss Stanwyck heard about Charlie's allowance of seventy-five cents a week, she decided to take over the role of his manager and get a raise from boss Bergen. She asked for ten dollars a week for her client and finally settled for a dollar. The only trouble was that Charlie made the mistake of hiring an expensive agent. Her fee was sixty percent and Charlie ended up with a loss instead of a raise. Now that he knows Miss Stanwyck's talent fees it is doubtful if he will hire her again.

Deadlock Over Appropriation Bill Delays City Payroll

COUNCIL HITS SNAG OVER $350 FUND FOR PARK

Move To Suspend Rules And Take Emergency Action Faces Failure

SPECIAL MEETS PLANNED

Alderman Group Hopes For Series Of Quick Sessions To Settle Issue

Deadlocked over a matter of $350 put into the appropriations ordinance for materials and labor at the Ted Lewis Recreation Center, Circleville council Wednesday night refused to suspend rules so the 1944 cash bill could be passed. As a result city employees will be forced to go without their pay checks unless emergency action is taken.

City workers, including members of police, fire and service departments, were paid December 24. Unless council makes a move at once the payroll cannot be met when it is due next week. City Auditor Lillian Young is not permitted to pay any bills for which money has not been appropriated. However, emergency action was indicated Thursday when several members of council, including Ray B. Anderson, Ray Cook and Boyd Horn, declared they would try to call a special meeting for Friday night and another for next Tuesday so the appropriations ordinance can have three readings and therefore be passed with only a majority vote.

Temper Flare
At Wednesday's hectic meeting, which saw tempers flare numerous times, Councilmen J. Donald Mason and George L. Crites blocked the appropriations bill when they refused to vote on suspension of the rules. Both men, members of the finance committee, said that the financial program for 1944 cannot include any amount for the city park. Their refusal to vote prevented suspension of rules since six votes were necessary. Councilmen Anderson, Cook, Horn and W. M. Reid voted for suspension of rules, all declaring themselves in favor of the recreation center appropriation, but refusal of the others to cast their ballots meant no suspension.

After council members, all realizing the payroll could not be met until the appropriations ordinance was passed, looked at each other for about five minutes, the adjournment motion was made.

Three Hour Session
The council session lasted more than three hours.

Prior to presentation of the appropriations bill, Mr. Mason and Mr. Crites stated that the financial set up for the year did not include any money for the park, their statements being addressed to council and to members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce who are urging that the city take action to get the recreation center into shape. Mr. Mason suggested that the park land be farmed during the summer.

The Jaycees had originally asked for an $800 appropriation, but backers of the park improvement plan were willing to settle for $350 to be divided among labor and materials. The Park Commission, headed by Tom O. Gilliland, would have supervision over the money.

Mayor Boosts Park

Mayor Ben Gordon, who is in favor of immediate development of the park, said that Ted Lewis after whom the park was named and who made a liberal contribution to purchase of the land for the park had expressed regret at the manner in which the city is handling the park property.

Several others items in the appropriations measure brought out heated discussion, but as a whole the ordinance includes about all the provisions written into it. A $300 item was cut out after protest by Mr. Anderson and Mr. Cook, it being a $300 boost in pay for Service Director Clarence Helvering. The appropriations ordinance called for $1,800 for salary instead of $1,500. It was pointed out that even though the money might be left in the ordinance that the pay boost could not be provided without a council ordinance. However, it was removed.

The question of a truck for the disposal plant was also debated, but money for a vehicle was left in the ordinance.

The new appropriations bill includes pay boost provisions for firemen and policemen and also for employees of the disposal plant. The latter workers, however, are protesting the increase being listed as a "bonus." Roy Hawkes, acting superintendent, said that the ordinance calling for a pay boost has an expiration date. He and his workers are objecting to this provision. However, the pay boost measure was given only a first reading Wednesday evening.

Appropriations Listed

Total amount of money to be required for operation through 1944 is fixed at approximately $134,207.09, less than $2,000 above 1943's appropriation as fixed at the start of the year.

Money to be appropriated out of the general fund amounts to $63,853.34; hospital, $23,000; sewers, $16,203.75; library, $10,800; street repairs, $6,400; gasoline tax, $10,350; fireman's retirement, $1,500; and police retirement, $2,100. The general funds used for payment of salaries for city employees, safety department, service department, and other kindred units of the government.

The city's balance January 1, 1944, was $11,849.54, while a balance of a little more than $12,000 is anticipated at the end of the year.

Council was handicapped Wednesday evening by illness, President of Council John C. Goeller being unable to attend and Councilman-At-Large Troy W. White also being too ill to be present. He has not yet been sworn in. No committee appointments were made for the next year, Mr. Goeller informing Clerk Fred Nicholas that he had completed them, however, Mr. Nicholas was employed as clerk for another two year term.

Among expenditures to be made during the year other than those for which money was appropriated will be storm sewers in Abernethy avenue and in a south end area, both being put on the council program. A sanitary sewer in the Fairview avenue district is also needed, this project to include a pump station at Hargus creek.

Council approved a pay boost from $600 to $800 for Mrs. Harriett Wallace, clerk of the board of health, and also heard a report from the health board urging that $200 be added to the salary of Mrs. Mae M. Groome, health nurse. This request was referred to the new finance committee.

Funeral services were conducted Thursday at the residence near Ve Points for Mrs. Olevia Timmons, 84, wife of T. Worley Timmons, who died late Monday at her home. Other survivors are nine grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

"But even this wasn't very popular in those days," continued the Vice President. "Amos was a social revolutionary, and social revolutionaries are never popular. What's more, he belonged to the wrong kingdom. He was of the people of Judah, and he had gone up to Israel to do his preaching. And the Israelites didn't like it, so they told him to go home."

ATLANTIC CHARTER

"And over here in the Book of Micah, Chapter 4, there's something about reconversion. 'And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: Nations shall not lift up a sword against nations, neither shall they learn war any more.'"

"Yes, Micah even has Rural Electrification, Farm Security, and the Atlantic Charter all wrapped up in Chapter 4. Listen to this: 'But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid.' (That's freedom from fear). 'For the mouth of the Lord of hosts has spoken it. For all people will walk every one in the name of his God.' (freedom of religion). 'And we will walk in the name of the Lord our God for ever and ever.'"

Wallace turned back to the Book of Psalms. "I don't know whether it is faulty exegesis or not. Maybe it is finding a text to fit your own ideas. Anyhow, here's a passage that most people use to prove that Christ, who was spurned and accursed, came to the foundation stone of the Christian religion."

He had found Psalm 118 and he read Verse 22: "The stone which the builders refused is become the headstone of the corner." But I see something else in that verse," he continued. "I see a reference to all the rejected peoples—the minorities all over the world. The rejected people grow strong. They work harder and hang together and get to be a dominant people."

"That's true of the Jews, and it may prove true of the Negroes and even the Japanese-Americans who are being spat on today. Generally speaking, it is true of all rejected peoples. That's why there is so much hope for the minorities. We used to reject and despise the Chinese, but they may become 'the headstone of the corner.'"

"That's something we will have to watch in making the peace," concluded the Vice President. "It must be a fair and generous peace, or the vanquished will become strong by the very fact of being oppressed."

The young man looked at the clock and realized he had been with the Vice President of the United States for half an hour. His head was swimming. Mr. Wallace had told him he had no advice for young people, but his listener's head was brimming with new ideas. He rose, grateful, and went away.

officials, and the Administration has leaned over backward not to press for deferments. But dollar-a-year men have learned to avoid the tough boards of Washington by applying to their local boards, more likely to be impressed by a statement that "the applicant's services are required by the Federal Government in Washington."

However, this device may be upset by recent instructions issued by Selective Service officials for reviewing occupational deferments. The reviews will be made by appeals boards in the area of the registrant's place of employment rather than in his home area.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 1 pint a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sensations shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

maintain their industrialized economies. Discoveries of new oil fields will undoubtedly be made to supplement known oil reserves and, as in the past, the steady development of technological improvements in oil production will make it possible to draw on oil reserves which cannot now be tapped.

"Nevertheless, as in the case of other natural resources, some nations will have insufficient oil reserves to meet their petroleum requirements. Others will have a surplus.

Equal Distribution

"Agreed action by the nations of the world, as provided for in the master lend-lease agreements, for the expansion of production, the elimination of discriminatory treatment in commerce, and the reduction of trade barriers, will assure the United States and other nations fair and equal access to the petroleum produced in all parts of the world."

The President dampened any hopes for increased supplies of civilian motor fuel during the war by asserting:

"The over-all petroleum war needs of the United Nations in 1944 will rise above what they are now as the magnitude of our offensive increases. Additional supplies of petroleum products from other areas will not therefore result in reducing the demands on our own petroleum resources."

BUSES BANNED FROM USE OF COVERED BRIDGE

Bus traffic between Circleville and Kingston and between Kingston and Chillicothe was disrupted Wednesday night when state highway patrolmen, checking the weight of the Valley Public Service Co., banned the big carriers from traveling over the Deer creek wooden covered bridge on Route 104. They declared the heavy buses were too big a load for the old bridge.

The detour has been in use since the north span of the river bridge at Chillicothe fell into the Scioto several weeks ago.

As a result of the ban on buses, persons living in Kingston and working in Circleville and Chillicothe are finding it difficult to reach their work. Private cars are being pressed into service for the trips back and forth.

Buses will use Routes 22 and 277 between Chillicothe and Circleville, traveling west out of Circleville to Williamsport and south through Clarksville to Chillicothe. The same route is being used in reverse for traffic from Chillicothe north.

Passenger cars are being permitted to travel Route 104, only heavier vehicles being banned from the Deer creek bridge.

Bus company officials hope to be able to put a bus of lighter weight into service so Kingston travelers can be served, but nothing has been worked out as yet.

JOHN P. FORESMAN, 77, DIES AT INDIANA HOME

Friends in Circleville have received word of the death Tuesday in Lafayette, Ind., of John P. Foresman, 77, son of the late Bennett and Mary Grace Foresman. He had been ill one month. Funeral and burial will be in Lafayette. Mr. Foresman leaves a brother, William Foresman, of Indianapolis, Ind., in addition to his widow. He was a cousin of John Boggs, Mrs. Frank J. Bennett and Mrs. Clark Will of Circleville and was a nephew of the late William Foresman.

FARMER TAKES FIRE TO CIRCLEVILLE STATION

John Matz, Washington township farmer, started to market Wednesday with a load of ear corn and some bags in which to put the corn after it had been shelled at a local mill.

But when Mr. Matz reached the mill the bags were gone.

The Washington township man drove his truck to the fire department and asked firemen to extinguish flames which had broken out in the rear of the truck. A cigarette had been tossed from the truck cab and instead of going to the ground had landed among the bags. They caught fire.

No other damage was done.

QUARANTINE POSTED

Another scarlet fever quarantine was posted in rural Pickaway county Wednesday at the home of Elbert Holbert of near Darbyville. Holbert's daughter, Anna Jean, 9, is ill. Several other quarantines are effective in scattered parts of the county.

ANGUS CATTLE BREEDERS FORM ORGANIZATION

Aberdeen Angus cattle breeders of Pickaway county formed an organization Wednesday evening at a meeting conducted in Circleville devoted to promotion of the breed in this district. Twenty men attended the meeting.

The organization, named the Pickaway County Aberdeen Angus Association, elected Dean Godden of Williamsport, as its president; Harry Brown of New Holland as vice-president, and Hewitt Cromley of Ashville as secretary-treasurer.

The association decided to have regular meetings to advertise and promote the breed, promote the Junior Fair exhibit of Angus cattle, hold a county show and sale of registered cattle, to conduct a tour to Angus herds of the county, and to organize a regular association of breeders with a constitution and by-laws.

The association pledged $100 for the Angus exhibit on the Junior Fair next fall.

Next meeting of the association will be conducted Wednesday, March 8.

It is recalled too that the thing that aroused this authority was not labor's conduct so much as the fact that the threatened rail strike had not been settled without army seizure of the roads. That was the point stressed. He appeared to hold government authorities as much responsible as labor for the army's seizure of the roads.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, has identified this high authority as General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

At the same time, the army—in a report on its first week in control of the railroads—reported everything was running smoothly and that the War department had not found it necessary to intervene in any way in the regular conduct of the affairs of the roads.

The old U. S. S. Constitution received the name "Old Ironsides" following its victory over the British frigate Guerriere.

HOW TO CURE THAT STICKY IRON

Don't "cuss" at a sticky sole plate on your electric iron. Here's an easy cure. Heat the iron, then rub the iron over a piece of paper sprinkled with salt. This removes starch or other substances. Then wax the sole plate by rubbing paraffin or beeswax over it. Finally remove the excess wax by running the iron over a clean piece of paper. Burnt starch may be removed with fine steel wool when iron is cool.

- 1 Never iron over buttons, snaps, zippers or hooks and eyes. Such objects score the sole plate of the iron.
- 2 Use extreme care to avoid dropping your iron. You may break some vital part that is impossible to replace.
- 3 Be sure iron is cool before putting it away. And don't wrap cord around the hot iron.
- 4 Take good care of your iron cord. Don't let it kink. Pull out plug by grasping plug, not the cord.

Washington newspaper offices shortly after 1 a. m. Wednesday, read as follows:

"For release upon receipt. 'The American Federationist,' the official monthly magazine of the American Federation of Labor, will feature a statement by General Douglas MacArthur in the next issue of the publication, now on the press, it was disclosed today (Wednesday)."

"General MacArthur's statement reads as follows: 'Labor never has failed the army or the nation. May God bless you all for your splendid patriotism.'"

"This statement, sent to the American Federation of Labor by Four-Star General MacArthur—a fighting general—is being given most prominent display in the Federationist as is a large photo of the general.

"(Editors: Please note that the foregoing release, which is offered without comment as to its relevancy to a somewhat contrary statement made by 'an anonymous high personage', is made by the American Federationist, a magazine, and is to be attributed to the American Federationist and no other source.)"

"American Federationist."

An AFL spokesman made this comment:

"The announcement was completely unauthorized. The story was not released by anybody in authority. It was released by some one who had no authority to release such a statement. If the MacArthur message is being printed in this week's issue of the Federationist, it will be a reprint of the message published in the June 1942 edition."

BOY FUGITIVES STEAL CARS TO FLEE POLICE

State highway patrolmen and authorities in several central and southcentral Ohio counties were on the lookout Thursday for two youthful fugitives from the Boys' Industrial school, near Lancaster. The youths escaped the institution Wednesday night, hitched a ride as far as Amanda, stole a car there and continued their journey toward western Ohio after stealing a car from the Clark garage, Williamsport.

The boys were named as Russell Riley, 15, of Dayton, and William Day, 16, of Hamilton.

The Amanda car was found abandoned one mile west of Williamsport on Route 22. It was a 1935 Chevrolet coach.

The Clark garage was broken into about 4 a. m. The cash register was looted of $5 in cash and the Clark family automobile, a 1937 Chrysler, was stolen. A gasoline coupon book was also taken.

Patrolmen were watching all roads in the Dayton and Hamilton district believing the two boys may be headed for home.

tractors alleged to have made huge profits.

The report of Sen. Walsh (D) Mass., however, said that 40 manufacturing companies out of a selected list of 200 retained enough war profits after paying taxes in 1942 to more than double their net worth.

The report said the lowest earning record among the 200 was 16.1 percent, while the company making the most money realized 965 percent on its investment after paying taxes.

The report asserted that 11 of the 200 companies made over 200 percent profit after taxes in 1942, while four earned 500 percent or more.

The tax bill is slated to reach the senate floor next Wednesday. The fight over renegotiation, as well as a battle over "freezing" social security taxes, may delay passage for two weeks unless a compromise is reached.

ALLIES SWEEP AHEAD ALONG TEN MILE FRONT

Gen. Nikolai Vatutin captured 60 more towns and villages in their drive clear the lower Ukraine of the Nazi invaders.

After capturing Erdichev, key defense position 85 miles northeast of the Romanian border, the first Ukrainian army pressed forward in a drive that threatens to topple all German defenses in lower Russia. One column of Cossack cavalry was reported to have penetrated "deep" toward Sarny, which is 35 miles west of the pre-1939 Polish frontier.

In White Russia, the first Baltic Army seized 90 other inhabited places while driving toward the Latvian border, less than 40 miles distant.

The Japs, meantime, were hampered backward by United States Marines advancing toward Borgen bay on New Britain. On New Guinea, too, other Americans were gaining in the Saldor area.

CLERK MAY BE EMPLOYED AT CITY HOSPITAL

City Solicitor Joe W. Adkins was instructed Wednesday evening by council to draw an ordinance for presentation at the next session of council to provide for an employee at Berger hospital to handle the bookkeeping job and to serve as a clerk under bond.

The move for such an employee was made after the solicitor declared that employment of such a person could work to great advantage in that it would free the superintendent for more valuable work.

Mr. Adkins pointed out that the superintendent must now serve as a surgical nurse, collect accounts, keep all books and records, handle all purchases, figure rationing points, diets, make regular reports to the government on alcohol and narcotics, make reports to the state on maternity cases involving wives of soldiers so payment can be obtained, handle all the detail concerning industrial claims cases, file regular reports to the welfare department, and a score of other duties.

"This is too much for any one person to do," the solicitor said. The person hired to do the clerical work would also act as a collector. There are about $8,000 in old accounts standing now at the hospital, the solicitor declared that a large percentage of this money being collectable.

NEAL E. SWARTZ SUFFERS FROM BATTLE WOUNDS

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Swartz, Sr., of Amanda, have received word from the War department that their son, Corporal Neal E. Swartz, 25, is in an army hospital in North Africa after suffering shrapnel wounds in his right foot and ankle. He was injured December 7 when fighting with the 36th division in General Mark Clark's army in Italy.

The Amanda couple has not been given any information concerning the battle in which their son was hurt, a V-mail letter received from the soldier said that he was improving and feeling well.

Corporal Swartz was drafted in March, 1942, and was trained at Camp Blanding, Fla., and Camp Edwards, Mass., before going overseas in March, 1943.

The corporal was possibly in the same outfit as Private First Class Woodrow Ecard of near Circleville who was wounded on the same date. He also is in a North African hospital.

SHERIFF TAKES RADIO OUT OF COLLETT'S CELL

(Special to The Herald) WASHINGTON, C. H., Jan 6—James Collett, 60-year-old Clinton county farmer who is charged with the first degree murder of the Elmer McCoy family of three, will have to get along in the Fayette county jail without his radio.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Collett took his radio to the jail and the allegedly confessed killer was permitted to install it.

Prosecutor John Hill issued orders Wednesday to Sheriff W. H. Ichnowier to order the radio removed. "Collett must be treated the same as any other prisoner," Hill said. "He is not entitled to a radio."

The Clinton county farmer will go on trial February 12. He is indicted for murder of Elmer McCoy.

CITY REFUSES TO WAIVE FEES FOR CHILDREN

A request to council that Berger hospital waive a $10 fee paid by the Circleville and Pickaway County Public Health association for each indigent child sent there for a tonsil operation failed to receive support at the Wednesday evening meeting. The communication, sent to council by Fred C. Clark, president of the association, was referred to the hospital committee after several councilmen expressed opposition to the move.

Mr. Clark's letter pointed out that the association is financed with Community Chest money and that about $1,500 was spent in 1943 for tonsil operations. City and county children are provided the operations, $15 going to two surgeons who do the work and $10 to the hospital. The association president pointed out that since Berger hospital is a municipal institution he believed the $10 should be waived for city children. However, he said the association is willing to continue paying for rural children.

New Yorkers Best Both In Day And Night; Niggeling Jinxed

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—The American league baseball office, in releasing a potpourri of items about the 1943 season, confirmed today that the world champion New York Yankees were the tops both night and day.

Curiously, the three league clubs which play no night games at home, led the won-lost column for after-dark contests. The Yankees won seven and lost five and the Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers each won eight and lost six.

The league office also reported the Yankees held a wide margin over other clubs in the junior circuit in winning games by ninth inning rallies.

The New Yorkers pulled 12 games out of the fire in the final inning while losing only four on rallies by their opponents. The Chicago White Sox, who topped the league in games won by one run, finished second, and Boston third in the late rally department.

In all, during the 1943 campaign, 54 games were won in the ninth inning and four games ended in 1 to 0 scores in which the single run was scored in the ninth.

Other league scrappings: Among the hard-luck pitchers, Johnny Niggeling, then with St. Louis, twice hurled two-hit ball, but lost on both occasions, in the fourth inning against Cleveland and in the ninth against Philadelphia. The White Sox was the only club which failed to get at least one homer in every league park. Washington was the only team to collect more home runs in a road park than at home, homering 17 times at St. Louis as compared to nine circuit clouts in Griffith Stadium.

BASSLER TAKES LEAD IN WEST COAST TOURNEY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—Harry Bassler, Fox Hills professional, had the medalist honors in hand today after shooting a two-under-par 72-70-142 to capture first place in the qualifying event preceding the $12,500 Los Angeles golf championship.

Bassler led a field of 186 pros and amateurs who were gunning for a place in the 128-player open which begins a four-day campaign tomorrow at the Wilshire Country Club.

One stroke behind Bassler was San Francisco's 17-year-old Bobby Rosburg, and Eddie Nowak, Ingleswood pro, with 143. Rosburg, finalist in the California State amateur at Pebble Beach last summer, carded 70-73-143 after missing a six-foot birdie putt that would have earned him a tie with Bassler.

TWO PRO LOOP BIGWIGS FIGHT LAYDEN'S FINES

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Protests against the $500 fines he levied against two of the National Football league's executives were on file with Commissioner Elmer Layden today.

George Marshall of the Washington Redskins and Ralph Brizzola of the Chicago Bears were penalized by Layden as a result of an altercation between them at Wrigley field during the championship playoff game December 26.

Layden announced he was prepared to hear the cases at any time, but that no appointments had been made.

Washington reports said Marshall would arrive in Chicago a day early for the league meeting next Wednesday and Thursday so that he might take up his protest with Layden.

HOCKEY STAR IRKED

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Flash Hollett, star defenseman of the Boston Bruins hockey team who was traded yesterday to the Detroit Red Wings for Art Ross, insisted today that he would not appear in the Wings lineup for tonight's Detroit-New York Rangers game. "I'm going to Ontario and I won't play for Detroit tonight, if ever," Hollett said. "I know that being shifted from one city to another is part of a hockey player's career—but that doesn't lessen my disappointment."

Now well past 30, he is going to make a wrestling comeback. And become champion again no doubt.

A former sub-threat at Minnesota, he was just that good all over again as a member of the old Chicago Bears in the National pro league, then he became one of several hundred world wrestling champions who were at large for one period, and this past season he made a football comeback with the Bears.

Now well past 30, he is going to make a wrestling comeback. And become champion again no doubt.

The department was called on six emergency cases, and three calls were received to unlock doors.

The fire department pension board informed council that it has $687 in its treasury and that two men are on pension from the department, one receiving $600 a year and the other $900 a year.

Council was asked also to designate two council members to serve on the pension board for 1944. Fred A. Howell is chairman of the pension unit and Robert Wolf is its secretary.

Gordon, Keller Gone; Yanks May Take Big Kicking Around In '44

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Bill Dickey, Joe Gordon, Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller used to make the Yankees click.

When they lost DiMaggio's centerfield ball-hawking and his power hitting, it was Dickey, Gordon and Keller who got most of the applause. They were the key men. Dickey probably will be back there behind the bat again next season, despite an inclination on his part to retire. But Gordon and Keller will be among the missing, and although there doesn't appear to be any great strength anywhere in the American league it is barely possible that this coming campaign will lead to a harsh and rude upsetting of the world champions.

They won't find anybody to fill the places at second base and in left field to be left vacant, respectively, by Gordon and Keller, who won't be back unless the unforeseen happens to them en route into the service.

I wouldn't even try to guess right now what the Yankee lineup will be. I don't suppose Manager Joe McCarthy would either. In fact he is notorious for being a non-guesser on more predictable things than this. He probably would grant that it looks as though Bill Johnson will be back at third base. But Johnson, sensational as he played last season and in the World Series, can't hold down the entire infield.

All the Yankees actually know at this time, according to an announcement as of today, is that they will report at Atlantic City for Spring training on March 13 and that they will play 16 exhibition games, 11 of them already arranged.

To Start And Finish
Major league officials and the club-owners are convinced they will be able to start and finish the season, regardless of expected further losses of man-power to the armed forces.

The world lightweight title, if any, will be in a further state of confusion tomorrow night if by some chance Lulu Costantino manages to beat Beau Jack in their 10-rounder. Beau Jack's New York commission crown won't be at stake, but Costantino will be in line for a crack at it in the event he scores an upset.

Sammy Angott, the National Boxing association crown-wearer, is booked for a non-title engagement with Beau Jack later on, and Bobby Ruffin, who beat Beau Jack in one encounter, is still a little insistent he be declared in on the festivities, despite his recent loss to Angott.

Costantino, it might as well be reported, is given scant chance against Beau Jack, although the former has had 97 fights and suffered only one knockdown. A while back he was some kind of a sensation around here, and may still be after this encounter, unlikely as that may seem.

Deadlock Over Appropriation Bill Delays City Payroll

COUNCIL HITS SNAG OVER $350 FUND FOR PARK

Move To Suspend Rules And Take Emergency Action Faces Failure

SPECIAL MEETS PLANNED

Alderman Group Hopes For Series Of Quick Sessions To Settle Issue

Deadlocked over a matter of $350 put into the appropriations ordinance for materials and labor at the Ted Lewis Recreation Center, Circleville council Wednesday night refused to suspend rules so the 1944 cash bill could be passed. As a result city employees will be forced to go without their pay checks unless emergency action is taken.

City workers, including members of police, fire and service departments, were paid December 24. Unless council makes a move at once the payroll cannot be met when it is due next week. City Auditor Lillian Young is not permitted to pay any bills for which money has not been appropriated.

However, emergency action was indicated Thursday when several members of council, including Ray B. Anderson, Ray Cook and Boyd Horn, declared they would try to call a special meeting for Friday night and another for next Tuesday so the appropriations ordinance can have three readings and therefore be passed with only a majority vote.

Temper Flare

At Wednesday's hectic meeting, which saw tempers flare numerous times, Councilmen J. Donald Mason and George L. Crites blocked the appropriations bill when they refused to vote on suspension of the rules. Both men, members of the finance committee, said that the financial program for 1944 cannot include any amount for the city park. Their refusal to vote prevented suspension of rules since six votes were necessary. Councilmen Anderson, Cook, Horn and W. M. Reid voted for suspension of rules, all declaring themselves in favor of the recreation center appropriation, but refusal of the others to cast their ballots meant no suspension.

After council members, all realizing the payroll could not be met until the appropriations ordinance was passed, looked at each other for about five minutes, the adjournment motion was made.

Three Hour Session

The council session lasted more than three hours.

Prior to presentation of the appropriations bill, Mr. Mason and Mr. Crites stated that the financial set up for the year did not include any money for the park, their statements being addressed to council and to members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce who are urging that the city take action to get the recreation center into shape. Mr. Mason suggested that the park land be farmed during the summer.

The Jaycees had originally asked for an $800 appropriation, but backers of the park improvement plan were willing to settle for $350 to be divided among labor and materials. The Park Commission, headed by Tom O. Gilliland, would have supervision over the money.

Mayor Boosts Park

Mayor Ben Gordon, who is in favor of immediate development of the park, said that Ted Lewis after whom the park was named and who made a liberal contribution to purchase of the land for the park had expressed regret at the manner in which the city is handling the park property.

Several other items in the appropriations measure brought out heated discussion, but as a whole the ordinance includes about all the provisions written into it. A $300 item was cut out after protest by Mr. Anderson and Mr. Cook, it being a $300 boost in pay for Service Director Clarence Helvering. The appropriations ordinance called for $1,800 for salary instead of $1,500. It was pointed out that even though the money might be left in the ordinance that the pay boost could not be provided without a council ordinance. However, it was removed.

The question of a truck for the disposal plant was also debated, but money for a vehicle was left in the ordinance.

The new appropriations bill includes pay boost provisions for firemen and policemen and also for employees of the disposal plant. The latter workers, however, are protesting the increase being listed as a "bonus." Roy Hawkes, acting superintendent, said that the ordinance calling for a pay boost has an expiration date. He and his workers are objecting to this provision. However, the pay boost measure was given only a first reading Wednesday evening.

Appropriations Listed

Total amount of money to be required for operation through 1944 is fixed at approximately $134,207.09, less than $2,000 above 1943's appropriation as fixed at the start of the year.

Money to be appropriated out of the general fund amounts to $63,853.34; hospital, $23,000; sewers, $16,203.75; library, $10,800; street repairs, $6,400; gasoline tax, $10,350; fireman's retirement, $1,500; and police retirement, $2,100. The general funds used for payment of salaries for city employees, safety department, service department, and other kindred units of the government.

The city's balance January 1, 1944, was $11,849.54, while a balance of a little more than $12,000 is anticipated at the end of the year.

Council was handicapped Wednesday evening by illness. President of Council John C. Goeller being unable to attend and Councilman-At-Large Troy W. White also being too ill to be present. He has not yet been sworn in. No committee appointments were made for the next year. Mr. Goeller informing Clerk Fred Nicholas that he had completed them, however, Mr. Nicholas was employed as clerk for another year term.

Among expenditures to be made during the year other than those for which money was appropriated will be storm sewers in Abernethy avenue and in a south end area, both being put on the council program. A sanitary sewer in the Fairview avenue district is also included, this project to include a pump station at Hargus creek.

Council approved a pay boost from $600 to $800 for Mrs. Harriett Wallace, clerk of the board of health, and also heard a report from the health board urging that $200 be added to the salary of Mrs. Mae M. Groome, health nurse. This request was referred to the new finance committee.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

"But even this wasn't very popular in those days," continued the Vice President. "Amos was a social revolutionary, and social revolutionaries are never popular. What's more, he belonged to the wrong kingdom. He was of the people of Judah, and he had gone up to Israel to do his preaching. And the Israelites didn't like it, so they told him to go home."

ATLANTIC CHARTER

"And over here in the Book of Micah, Chapter 4, there's something about reconversion. 'And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: Nations shall not lift up a sword against nations, neither shall they learn war any more.'"

"Yes, Micah even has Rural Electrification, Farm Security, and the Atlantic Charter all wrapped up in Chapter 4. Listen to this: 'But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid.' (That's freedom from fear). 'For the mouth of the Lord of hosts has spoken it. For all people will walk every one in the name of his God: (freedom of religion). 'And we will walk in the name of the Lord our God for ever and ever.'"

Wallace turned back to the Book of Psalms. "I don't know whether it is faulty exegesis or not. Maybe it is finding a text to fit your own ideas. Anyway, here's a passage that most people use to prove that Christ, who was spurned and accused, came to the foundation stone of the Christian religion."

He had found Psalm 118 and he read Verse 22: "The stone which the builders refused is become the headstone of the corner." But I see something else in that verse," he continued. "I see a reference to all the rejected people—the minorities all over the world. The rejected people grow strong. They work harder and hang together and get to be a dominant people."

"That's true of the Jews, and it may prove true of the Negroes and even the Japanese-Americans who are being spat on today. Generally speaking, it is true of all rejected peoples. That's why there is so much hope for the minorities. We used to reject and despise the Chinese, but they may become 'the headstone of the corner.'"

"That's something we will have to watch in making the peace," concluded the Vice President. "It must be a fair and generous peace, or the vanquished will become strong by the very fact of being oppressed."

The young man looked at the clock and realized he had been with the Vice President of the United States for half an hour. His head was swimming. Mr. Wallace had told him he had no advice for young people, but his listener's head was brimming with new ideas. He rose, grateful, and went away.

"ESSENTIAL WORKERS"

officials, and the Administration has leaned over backward not to press for deferments. But dollar-a-year men have learned to avoid the tough boards of Washington by applying to their local boards, more likely to be impressed by a statement that "the applicant's services are required by the Federal Government in Washington."

However, this device may be upset by recent instructions issued by Selective Service officials for reviewing occupational deferments. The reviews will be made by appeals boards in the area of the registrant's place of employment rather than in his home area.
